Look for refined—and redefined—luxury designs for your home this spring BY TORI MELLOTT

Baroncelli

Crystal-Clear Persuasion

A visual symphony of floating textured glass balls that are functional and beautiful? Yes, please! The “Atomos” pendant is one of seven new designs that hip lighting manufacturer Baroncelli has added to its signature collection. Groovy floor lamps and additional pendant lights round out the mix. Baroncelli NYC Showroom: 212/255-2005.

Klaus Haapaniemi

The Finnish illustrator’s design portfolio boasts projects with Marimekko and Christian Louboutin, and his own textile collection is equally impressive. Drawing from fantasy and folklore, these “Crane” cushions use traditional weaving techniques to create a whimsical pattern that is utterly sophisticated. Available at klaush.com. —Kari Costas

Niermann Weeks

Daring Dining

The “Tissage” dining table is based on a 1940s crystal-encrusted Bagues chandelier (Bagues is the venerable French lighting manufacturer famous for silver- and gold-leafing iron and bronze and hand-applying intricate crystal designs.) With a woven metal base and a distressed gold-leaf finish, it is reminiscent of a dress corset. This glass-topped table falls somewhere between ladylike and utterly glam. (niermannweeks.com)

Let's Celebrate!

A 25th anniversary is a major milestone, and at Traditional Home we invite you to help us celebrate ours by making this award-winning floribunda rose your own.

A prolific bloomer, its buds open to luxurious blooms packed with layers of creamy white petals enriched by warm peach highlights and an apricot center. The rose’s habit is to be bushy and upright with dense, matte green foliage.

Our commemorative rose is not only beautiful but carefree, with proven disease resistance to blackspot and mildew. A good cutting rose for bouquets, it will also bring very full flowers and a light, fruity fragrance to a sunny spot in the garden of your traditional home.—Rebecca Christia
